

About the English Program

The English Program at College of Science and Humanities at Aflaj offers 4-year BA program in English language. The program was officially established in the first semester of the academic year 1431/ 1432 H. The program caters to the students' needs of advanced language, translation, literature and communication skills. The program grants Bachelor Degree in English language with total credit hours of 136. This program is taught in both male and female sections. The English program also fulfils the needs of other programs in the college. Language skills are essential not only for teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) but also in meeting the labor market demands. In order to fulfill the Kingdom's 2030 vision objectives and open new avenues of career opportunities, the Program of English has recently modified its BA study program and has added a new variety of courses on language, translation and literature. This will encourage our graduates to take up careers like teaching English at schools, professional (freelancing) English translation and interpretation, and English language-using industries, such as journalism, advertising, administration, marketing, business and so forth. Our faculty members are well qualified and are known for their professional excellence. They possess extraordinary skills and show comprehensive dedication to teach at all levels, enhancing students' critical thinking skills and imaginative capabilities. They are providing teaching services, by using research-based interactive and communicative teaching techniques.
